Music at the Prison.

On Sunday the musical organization of boys known as the Guitar and Harmonica Choir went out to the State Prison and rendered several pieces to the prisoners. The inmates of the place were on the tip-toe of expectancy over the advent of the new music and gave the boys a warm reception. When they had finished the first selection the prisoners broke forth into a shout of applause that almost made the walls fall down. They stamped and whistled and whistled and stamped like madmen. They were then given "Massa's in the cold cold ground" and "Home Sweet Home." As the latter piece was played they sat like statues with bowed heads and a close observer could see the tears welling in their eyes. It melted the hardest of them and they bowed their heads lower to hide their emotions. Withal it was a very impressive scene and one which those who witnessed it will never forget.

The Lew Johnson Combination

Of Lew Johnson's "Mamma's Black Baby Boy" combination, that will appear at the Carson Opera House next Thursday evening, the Salt Lake Daily News says: The Walker Opera House was filled last night, notwithstanding the bad weather, to see Lew Johnson's Colored Combination. Judging from the frequent bursts of hilarious laughter, the audience enjoyed the performance immensely. Lovett and Wade are very good end men, and the character song of the latter created roars of mirth. Miss Ella Hawkins is a very pleasing little performer, who made quite a hit with her skipping rope dance. The songs rendered by members of the troupe were well received.

DECORATION DAY.

A FINE CELEBRATION IN CARSON.

The Exercises at the Opera House.

Decoration Day was fittingly observed in this city on Monday, the ceremonies being under the auspices of Custer Post. The only drawback to the day was the intense heat. From morning until late in the afternoon the sun poured down with fierce rays, which made everybody more or less uncomfortable, and showed the wisdom of the Committee in postponing the literary exercises until evening.

The procession to the cemetery was headed by George Hark, Grand Marshal, and George Tyrrell, Assistant Grand Marshal.

The members of Custer Post were on foot, headed by the band, followed by the Mexican Veterans, State officers, and two juvenile companies, consisting of a fire brigade and military company.

There was a long line of carriages and school children to swell the procession.

The ceremonies at the cemetery were conducted by Post Commander Bartine. He read the regular Grand Army ritual. Comrade Connolly gracefully officiating as Chaplain. The choir rendered "Rest Soldiers Rest" and "America" most beautifully.

The grave of Col McDermitt was decorated with the usual ceremonies, as representing the entire list of dead whose remains had been removed from Fort Churchill.

All were then decorated in turn, after which the members of the Post decorated the graves of their comrades as of old.

The only one added to the list since last Memorial Day was Comrade Michael O'Hare, and his grave was profusely strewn with flowers.

The other graves in the cemetery were very profusely decorated with flowers, the Wells-Fargo Company transporting 156 boxes of flowers to the city from California.

Mrs. Tobey's grave was buried with flowers by friends and relatives.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE.

The Opera House was filled with people in the evening. Post Commander Bartine opened the exercises with a short introduction, and introduced Judge Hawley as the Orator of the Day.

He spoke forcibly and pointedly for half an hour amid frequent applause, in an address which abounded in original ideas. It was terse and vigorous, and in it he stepped outside the usual beaten path trodden in such addresses. It was highly spoken of by all who had the pleasure of listening to it.

The essay by Mrs. Bicknell, introducing the departure and return of the regiment was a very fine piece of literary work, and rendered with the best effect by the author. The first Tableau represented a band of men in bright uniforms and alighting arms, bidding their families farewell.

The next curtain rose on the remnants of a company, in torn and ragged uniforms, begrimed with battle stains, bringing their tattered emblems from the field. Men bowed down with wounds and exposure, and weary with travel.

The tableaux were under the supervision of John P. Meder, and drew forth loud applause.

Mrs. M. E. Jones read a stirring poem on the Union and Confederate dead, written by John McDonel, of Gold Hill, and Miss Rosa Stananus gave a recitation, "Seeking for the Slain." Both were loudly applauded.

The choir rendered two beautiful hymns, and the Chaplain closed with the benediction.

The Storm.

Yesterday a cloud came from the Southeast and very soon covered the face of the entire sky. On every side long sweeps of rain could be seen hanging and trailing over the country, until finally Carson got a good drenching. There were good showers all day, especially welcome after the day of intense heat.

Indicted.

Yesterday the U. S. Grand Jury indicted Geo. Ham and Henry Stevens for robbing the Postoffice at Palisade. They will be arraigned at 10 o'clock this morning in Judge Sabin's Court.

KISSANE SUBD.

The Chemical Bank Seeks to Recover on Certain Notes.

The whereabouts of William Kissane have been definitely learned. He is not secluded in Victoria, nor has he even fled, but he is attending to his own business in a quiet way at his ranch, near Sonoma. Last Thursday, Deputy United States Marshal Hopkins went to Sonoma commissioned to serve a subpoena on him in a case entitled "The Chemical National Bank of New York against William Kissane, alias William K. Rogers,"—an action brought to recover on certain alleged forged notes in the possession of the bank. Mr. Hopkins, on arriving in the town, began an inquiry among the citizens of the place as to where Kissane could be found. He asked General Vallejo and others intimately acquainted with him, and the answer invariably was that he had gone to British Columbia, coupled with a denunciation of his persecutors. The deputy, however, found him at his ranch and served the papers on him. Hopkins says that General Darr states that other suits of a similar character will be started. The deputy says that in Sonoma county the feeling against Kissane's persecutors is extremely bitter.

MONDAY'S RACES.

A Good Day's Sport at the Track.

There was a good attendance at the track on Monday to witness the racing programme advertised by John Sweeney. The day was rather sultry for the horses but the track was in fine condition and everything in good shape.

The first trotting race was won by Sweeney's horse Baldy. It was best three in five. Baldy lost the second heat but pulled out in good style after that and sustained his old reputation for speed and bottom.

The half mile running dash was won by the pluck of young Edwards, the rider of Lookout the Genoa horse. Just as he reached the turn in the home stretch the girth of the saddle broke and the rider like a flash realized what happened and seizing the flyer's mane he allowed the saddle to slip from under him and gamely held on winning the race amid the wildest applause of the crowd.

There was also a race where the horses had to run and make a short turn around a post. The horse ridden by Pete Musgrove won. The day's sport was of a nature that whetted the appetite of the sports for more fun in the near future.

A NEW SCHEME.

The Organization of Drinking Clubs in New York.

NEW YORK, June 1.—More liquor was sold in this city yesterday than on any Sunday since Mayor Hewitt began to attempt the enforcement of the law. A new scheme for evading it was tried for the first time and found to be popular and successful. Clubs of from twenty or thirty of the most generous patrons of hotel bars are organized, after the fashion of proprietors, on Saturday night, and allotted rooms in the hotels. A good supply of wines and liquors was consigned to these by the proprietors, and the hotel barkeepers were delegated to act as stewards. Each member had the privilege of inviting as many friends as he cared to or could vouch for into the club-rooms, and once inside all were on equal terms so far as ordering and paying for drinks was concerned. Some of the resorts at which the table d'hote are specialties gave their customers claret in teacups and kept the bottles out of sight.

Dragged to Death.

Says the Silver State of yesterday: Paul S. Gordon of Jordan Valley, was dragged to death by a runaway team near Baxter's last week. A stallion tied behind the buckboard frightened the team, which ran five miles, and when stopped Gordon's lifeless body was fast to the buckboard, mangled in a horrible manner, with nearly all the clothes torn from it.
